

Luxury Objection Handling

Objection: Wrong number! "This isn't Mr. Homeowner!"

Talk Track: Ahhhh gotcha. Well hey I am calling about the property over there on _____ street. Were you guys still interested in selling that?

Objection: I don't need any other options

Talk Track: Totally understand. Just want to make sure we're only creating win-win situations here, so you have about 5-10 minutes to talk about the property and your situation?

Objection: I'll sell for the right price

Talk Track: That makes sense. When you say the right price, is there a specific number in mind? We always want to come to an agreement that makes sense for both parties.

Objection: Not interested!!!!!!

Talk Track: Gotcha, while I update your file here, you don't have any other properties you are looking to sell do you?

Objection: Not interested/Changed my mind

Talk Track: That's funny you say that.. I have had several people tell me that lately. In fact, the last two people I have spoken to said that they changed their mind or weren't interested because the offers they have gotten have been too low. What has you not interested?

Objection: Make me an offer

Talk Track: Mr. Homeowner, that is exactly why I am giving you a call today! Now I can tell this is definitely not the first time someone has called you about the property. Let me tell you why this call will be a little different, at the end of the call after we talk about your property, 1 of 2 things will happen. Either I come back with an approval and an offer, or a denial with a reason. I just need to ask you a few questions first. Sound fair?

Objection: That is none of your business

Talk Track: I hear that a lot. The only reason I ask is because sometimes sellers have other needs that we are able to help out with such as letting them stay in the property for some time after we close to make the move easier for them or hiring movers to help them out. So can you tell me a little bit about what your goals are with this property?

Objection: What does that have to do with anything?

Talk Track: I just want to make sure I understand your situation to be sure that we are going to be a good fit for each other. Does that sound fair?

Objection: I need to speak with my lawyer

Talk Track: Absolutely. What we have found works best is for you and I to go over the contract line by line together first, so that way when you go to send it to your lawyer you'll have all your questions prepared. Do you have 10 minutes for us to go over the agreement now?

If they still want to have their attorney look it over...

Talk Track: No problem, I can make it even easier for you and send it to them. What is their email?

Objection: I need to think about it.

Talk Track: (Early in the call): I totally get that this is a big decision, but normally when people tell me they need to think about it it's because of one of two things. Either they need more information or they just aren't interested and don't want to tell me no. Which one is the case here?

If they say "I still just need to think about it": I hear you. When will you be able to give me a concrete answer...? Then move to the next objection: I need more time.

Objection: I want the price Zillow says my home is worth

Talk Track: Mr. Homeowner I completely understand, and I actually hear this often! Let me explain what the Zestimate really means... it's a guesstimate on what they think your property could be worth... They take the average price per square foot in the area and multiply that by your home size. This factors in new builds, and remodels that sell for much higher which can be why the Zestimate is off.

Objection: I got another offer

Talk Track: Oh great! There must have been something with that offer that you didn't like, otherwise you would have signed their contract. Can you share with me what that offer would have needed for you to move forward with them?

Objection: You called me, you give me a number

Talk Track: Right, I hear that alot. Here is the thing, I do not come up with the numbers, my only job is to speak to you, gather all the information I can, then take it back to my underwriters and fight for a number that works for you. So, what do you feel is a fair price I can take back to them?

Objection: I have a higher offer

Talk Track: I hear that all the time. Can you explain the offer to me?

First thing that will come out of their mouth is the price. After they tell you the price:

Talk Track: Awesome, so they offered you X. What kind of terms did they propose?

When they say "what do you mean?" — explain the terms of the offer. If they say "I don't have it in writing":
